

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to solid pharmaceutical preparations comprising at least one at least partially charged active substance in the form of a nanosol wherein the active substance is bonded to an oppositely charged chitosan derivative, processes for their production, and their use for the production of medicinal products.

209220 00469001